Certainly you are not going to be satisfied with clothes which are just clothes.

Surely you don't wear a suit simply to be covered or just because its customary.

Let us tell you something. If way down in your heart you are sort of sore on the clothes you have had, then won't you at least take a look at

Sincerity Clothes

They have the many features which young men demand in the clothes they wear. The shoulders are shapely, not extremely broad, or pinchingly narrow—just right.

They're capable of bringing out the best in your figure or helping to hide the worst in it.

W. C. COBB
SUPT. OF SCHOOLS

W. C. Cobb was born in Iowa, and received his education at Cornell College, Iowa, where he was graduated with the degree A. B. Later he attended Harvard university and the University of Chicago securing the degree A. B. at the former institution. Mr. Cobb was principal of our high school during the school year of '93 and '94. He became our city superintendent of schools in the fall of 1909.

He has taken a great interest in the high school, and has done much toward promoting school-spirit thru his interest in the literary and athletic organizations. We hope he may have practically secured for us a gymnasium with the co-operation of the school board.

Should schoolmates ever be forgot
And never brought to min'?
Should schoolmates ever be forgot
In days o' high school time?

For dear auld high school time my dear,
For dear auld high school time
We'll just take a brief review
For dear auld high school time.

You remember all the jokes we played
And overstepped the line,
But we've both changed amazingly
Since dear auld high school time.

We twa hae lurked about the halls
From half past eight 'til nine,
Never have we had such fun
Since dear auld high school time.

And here's a note you wrote to me
And there is one of mine,
We will just read them o'er again
For dear auld high school time.

PASSING THRU THE HALLS

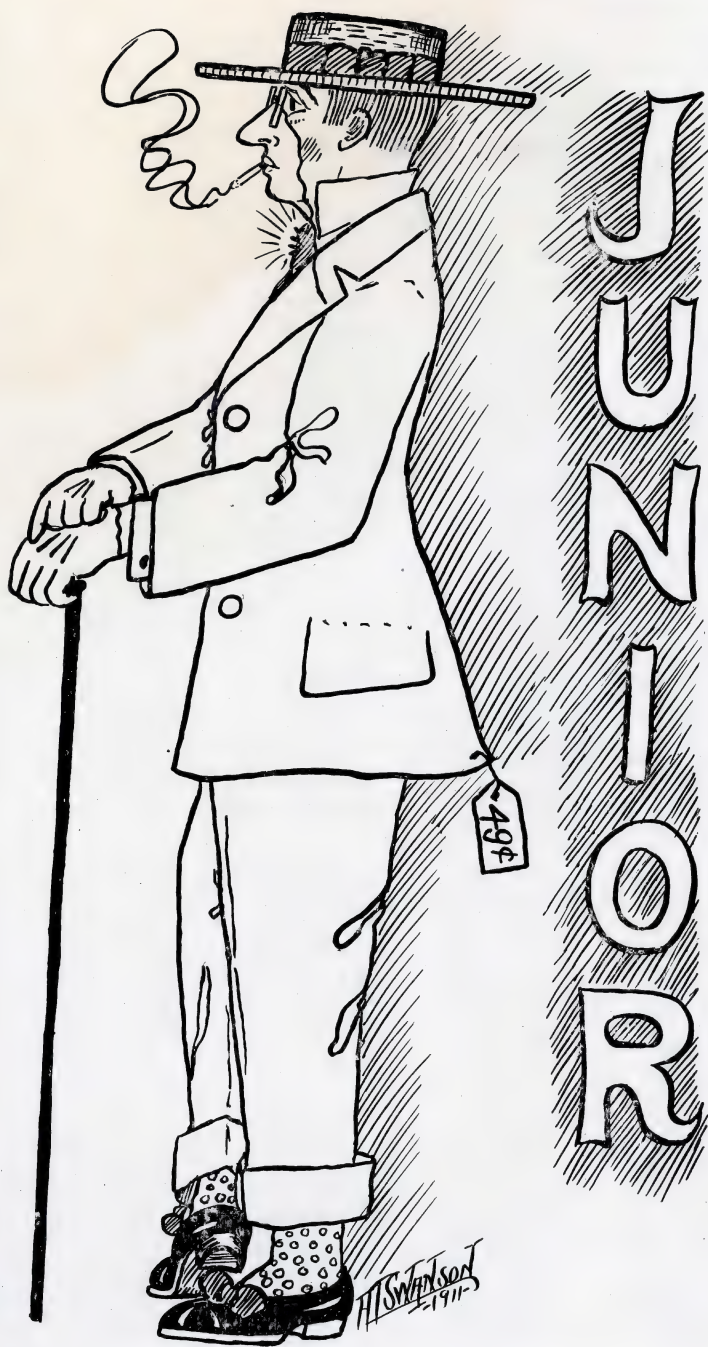

Stumbling over Freshmen,
Smiling at the girls,
Bumping 'gainst the fair ones,
Combing up their curls—
Keeps us jumping sideways.
There! McCarty calls,
"Marching thru the High School"
Passing thru the halls!

See those solemn Seniors,
With their haughty looks.
My! But ain't them peaches?
Look! What stacks of books!
In the class room always
Answers when called upon
Marching thru the High School
Passing thru the halls.

But the jaunty juniors
Gay and easy-going,
What they do not know
Is not worth the knowing.
Talking laughing, snichering—
Hark! McCarty calls,
Marching thru the High School
Passing thru the halls.

Is that thing a Sophomore?
Doesn't it look queer?
Her dress, it is the latest,
His tie is very neat.
Notice! How they swagger;
How the Freshman crawls.
Marching thru the High School
Passing thru the halls.

JUNIOR CLASS POEM

Hail to the mighty Juniors,
A splendid class and great,
Now aid me, gracious muses,
Their virtues to relate.

They're brilliant in the class room,
They shine in any sphere,
In history's future story
Of their greatness you shall hear.

But I cannot do them justice,
In my own words cold and weak.
So all the world famed masters
Shall in their praises speak.

SOPHOMORE CLASS OF '11

Behold us in all our glory. The Sophomore class of 1911. We know our upper class-mates try to lord over us—but, they must live and learn.

Sometimes when we get more than our share of class spirit, according to their august opinions, they say, tapping their foreheads wisely, "Remember you were only Freshmen last year."

Yes, yes, certainly we understand, but never-the-less we have agreed to make the class of 1913 stand out as a Beacon light on the pages of our High school History. When we hear the Juniors tell of the jolly good times at their class parties, it does sometimes make our hearts feel heavy and our faces look sad, but only for a moment, for next year—Oh! blissful future!

Then, too there are the Freshmen who never could mature into intelligent Sophomores without enduring their due amount of agony and as all noble Sophomores should, we see that they get it. By unanimous consent we agreed to give our under-classmates an unusually good training, and, believe us, they need it. Why? who ever heard of one of our members stealing out of school in the midst of the day's session? No one, of course! Only a Freshman would attempt a such unheard of thing.

In the Boys' Debating Club, George Bergreen received honors as second speaker in a debate against the Gamma Delta Sigma and Herbert Welsh also gave a well delivered selection. Werner Lund, another of our prominent class mates was given first honors in a boys declamatory contest. A goodly number of our girls also hold conspicuous membership in the Gamma Delta Sigma.

In a play given recently, Edna Orne, a Sophomore, was star actress, and did honor to her position. Out of the nine characters in the play four were Sophomores.

In the debate between the Gamma Delta Sigma and Boys Debating Club Nora Barron, another bright Sophomore, triumphed with her two Senior comrades winning honor for the Gamma Delta Sigma.

On the football field Charles Siekkinen, George Bergreen and Werner Lund always play to win, and are enough to melt any stern pedagogues heart, red marks or no.

But for all our importance, for all our intelligence, we are treated like any other common class. It is the fate of everyone of us, talented or otherwise, to fall from off the misty heights upon which he has in his own imagination to be caught "napping" or on the other hand, "acting too lively." But we are ever true to our motto, so the popular mode of getting between two Sophomores is "Meet Me in Dreamland" next year.

FRESHMEN CONSTITUTION

We, the Freshmen Class of 1911, in order to pluck a few of the thorns from the path of the future Freshies; establish justice, and insure their chances for evading the faculty rules; provide defense against swollen heads; promote the giving of shorter lessons, and secure the blessings of longer vacations to ourselves and our succeeding green-backs, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the Freshmen Classes of the B. H. S.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a class of Freshmen; said Freshies to be versed in all things pertaining to the disobedience of laws, teachers and faculty.

Sec. 2. Get as much fun and the least amount of work out of school as possible.

Sec. 3. To promote the general welfare, it is sometimes necessary to carry on conversation. It might be fitting to say "always necessary."

Sec. 4. In providing against long lessons, we have encountered few difficulties. When we mentioned it to the teachers, we found ourselves "Forsaken" and are told to "Wake Freshmen, Wake."

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 1. All debts of gratitude to faculty contracted by the present Freshmen shall be paid by the future Freshmen. Any person refusing to obey this law shall not be allowed to have their usual afternoon nap in school.

Sec. 2. No person shall be considered a representative of the class who shall not have obtained six state certificates and been an occupant of a seat in Room III for one forty minute period of one day.

Sec. 3. No Freshman shall be entitled to a seat in the Assembly Room in 1912 who shall not have handed in 13 botany specimens, eleven "Bad" English themes and 213 Algebra problems carefully written in a note book, incorrectly.

Sec. 4. We, the Freshmen, are the neatest class in the B. H. S. After the untidy Sophs have finished scribbling all over the desks, we give up our recitation periods to scrub them. We do all our scrubbing under the supervision of the Scrub Boss.

ARTICLE IV.

Rights and Privileges of Freshmen:

1. To occupy a seat in the Principal's office on an equal footing with any Senior.

2. To sit in the Assembly Room twenty minutes in the morning twice each week and sing with the Juniors and other important people.

3. To pass notes, whisper and flunk.

4. To visit the Literary Society programs when the members can find no one else to perform before.

5. To hope that we can pass in enough subjects to be entitled to sit upstairs next year.

"THE FRESHMEN."

"THE SENIORS LEAD"

The gong tolls the knell of parting day,
The dignified Seniors wind slowly down the stairs.
The teachers homeward plod their weary way,
And leave the school to darkness and to cares.

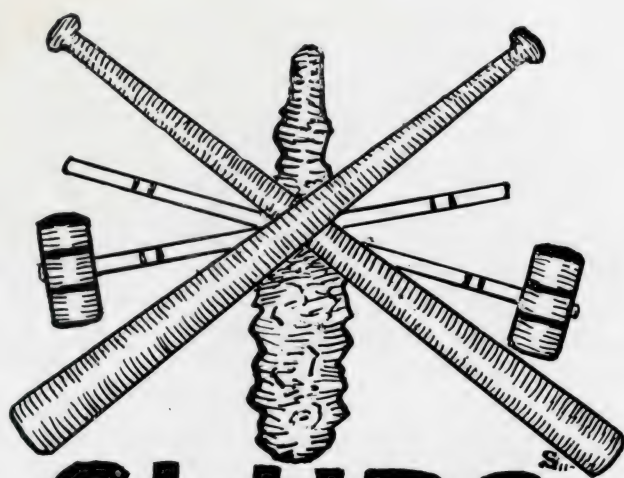

Now fades the glimmering ninties on the board,
All the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where Zoology specimens hoard,
And murmuring noises lull the distant fold.

Save in that box elder tree,
The moping owl does to the Senior Class complain
Of Freshmen wandering near her bower,
To molest her ancient solitary way.

Let not Juniors mock the Senior's toil,
Their lovely joys and destiny unknown.
Nor Sophomores hear with disdainful smile
The grand and glorious "Cyclone" of the Seniors.

The bost of heraldy; the pomp of power;
And all that beauty; all that wealth e'r gave,
Await alike the Seniors the inevitable hour.
The work of the Seniors lead but to the Stage.

—"ANONYMOUS."

CLUBS

THE BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY

There is little need to explain what it is; in simple words the name tells all the story. It might have possessed a fancier designation, the democracy and loyalty of the school preferred that it should not. It is a literary society embracing all of the High School students, teachers and Alumni; conducted by the High School and organized for the benefit of the High School.

Two things, however, conspire to aid the undertaking. In the first place we have the invaluable assistance of Mr. Cobb and Miss McCoy, whose ceaseless labors and never failing enthusiasm, combined with infinite patience and good humor, succeeded in securing the organization of the Society. The other powerful agency for its success was the fortunate selection of John Mahlum as President, and of course the other potent factor was the support of the school and the members who have, without doubt, been faithful in fulfilling all obligations.

The Society aims to awaken interest in all Literary work; to interest outsiders in High School work and above all to strengthen—create, if need be,—a spirit of High School loyalty. It is impossible to tell at present how much has been accomplished but the work has not been done in vain. Probably one of the best and most interesting programs of the year was that of the Mock Trial held in the Assembly Room in March. Coming, as it did, shortly after examinations, the trial was one of special interest inasmuch as it was a case of Faculty vs. students. Miss McCoy, sued by Richard Johnson and Bessie Paine for giving a too difficult examination in English IV, was defended by Attorneys Mahlum and Twohey. The lawyers for the plaintiffs were Berton Ford and Oscar Swanson, who endeavored to prove that many of the most brilliant students in the High School had failed in the exam.; that the plaintiffs were intelligent and industrious and that the tender sensibilities of Richard Johnson had been so wounded by his low mark that he had been incapacitated for doing his best work ever since the examination. The opposing lawyers based their defense on the fact that the English teacher had always worked unselfishly for the interests of the pupils; that the plaintiffs were neither intelligent nor industrious and that Mr. Johnson had no tender sensibilities. After two hours rigid cross-examination, Mr. Ford delivered his plea to the jury. Commencing with a summary of his arguments which he ably defended, he gradually waxed eloquent until in a burst of oratory he entreated the jurors, "Before the sun should set on yonder horizon to see that justice be meted out to the injured Plaintiffs. Then followed Mr. Mahlum's plea for Miss McCoy—a plea convincing in its heart-stirring recollections of the unselfishness of the English Teacher and powerful in the eloquence of the words uttered in the mighty voice which resounded through all the halls and corridors. Judge Carter solemnly admonished the jury concerning the responsibility of their position, after which they retired. In ten minutes they brought back a verdict of "Not guilty," thus completely exonerating the teacher.

Two other special programs which occurred this year were the debates, the first one on the Initiative and Referendum, and the other on Reciprocity. The former was a contest between the boys and girls, in which the girls demonstrated their ability over their opponents. The latter debate, conducted by four boys and two girls, resulted in a triumph for Reciprocity.

In fact, from one of the first programs, consisting of selections from Dickens when all felt the spell of the great master and longed to know him better, up to the Mock Trial, when the walls echoed to the impassioned eloquence of our youthful orators, and including the last few programs, we have every reason to assert that our meetings have been successful.

Remembering what the past has been, drawing encouragement from the present and looking into the future, it is high time that we should resolve to make the Literary Society what it should be—the grandest monument to the fame of the Brainerd High School.

BOYS' DEBATING CLUB

BOYS' DEBATING CLUB

President	Wm. Twohey
Vice President	Berton Ford
Secretary	Kenneth Ribbel
Treasurer	George Ford
Sergeant at Arms	Geo. Bergreen

We were organized in the fall of 1909. During our first year we had many brilliant members. The public debate on "Prohibition" attracted a large crowd. The very mention of "Woman Suffrage" brings to mind the eloquence of Thomas McMeekin and Roland Barron.

This year the Club started out under favorable auspices. An effort has been made to vary the program somewhat. We have attempted to develop skill in general public speaking.

One of the interesting public programs of the year was a declamatory contest on Washington's Birthday. Werner Lund and Richard Ahrens carried off the honors.

In the contest between the Boys' Debating Club and the Gamma Delta Sigma, on the Initiative and Referendum, despite the fact that we expected an easy victory, we found ourselves outwitted by the girls in the art of persuasion. However this has not made us lose courage and we are looking forward to a brilliant future.

GAMMA DELTA SIGMA

The Gamma Delta Sigma was organized by the Junior and Senior girls, January 17, 1910, for literary and social purposes. These purposes have been well carried out.

The first president, Miss Lillian Smith, altho working under the difficulties of a new project and a late start, placed the Club upon a solid foundation and brought it up to a high standard. The work was taken up again this year with an increase of membership and club spirit under Mae Staples the first semester, and Mabel Smythe the second semester.

The social feature of 1910, which will long be remembered by the members, was a "May Morning Breakfast," supposed to have taken place on the banks of the noble "Father of Waters," but in reality was greatly enjoyed at the home of the President.

Many excellent programs have been given, consisting of declamations, original stories, essays, musical numbers and debates.

The Society, made ambitious by success, issued a challenge to the Boys' Debating Society for a debate on the "Initiative and Referendum," and proudly bore away first honors. Another honor was bestowed upon the Society in the form of an invitation to send a representative to the Declamatory Contest given by Stanley Hall, Minneapolis.

The Class of 1910 is especially interested in the Gamma Delta Sigma, for the girls are all charter members and have not only enjoyed the benefit and pleasure it afforded but helped in its improvement. Now that it is a "pleasure of the past" our greatest hope is that its progress may be as rapid as it has already been in the short career, and become more beneficial and prominent each succeeding year.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL SEASON OF 1910

The outlook for the season of 1910 was discouraging at first—as there were only four veterans from last season, and the team had no coach. Walter Wieland, a former High School star was later secured as coach, and with his valuable assistance the prospects for a good team brightened. He labored patiently and persistently, day after day, and at last put forth a well trained team.

In spite of the drawbacks the boys did not become discouraged but made a reputable showing on all the fields of battle. With the valuable coaching and experience which the team has had, the prospects for a winning eleven next year look very encouraging.

The initial game of the season was played against the heavy St. Cloud Normal team, the Normalites winning after a stubborn battle by the score of 3-0.

The next game was played at Wadena. The Brainerd team forfeiting the game in the second quarter, because their opponents refused to play a clean game.

The first game on the home grounds was a return game with the St. Cloud Normal. The boys made a tremendous effort to win against their heavy opponents, but they were compelled to give the game to the visitors; score 12-0.

The next game which is always the leading feature of the season was lost to our sturdy rivals, the Little Falls team. The score was 15 and 6 the home eleven scoring for the first time.

The last game of the season was played at St. Cloud. This was the hardest fought battle of the season. The later champions were held for a no-score game the first three quarters, but they succeeded in scoring 10 points the last quarter; score 10-0.

From the High School squad of 1910 a large nucleus of players is being carried over and we hope to carry off the championship next fall.

Baccalaureate Sermon-----Reverend Jos. Alten

FOOTBALL

A mass meeting of all boys interested in baseball was held in March. The team was organized with Wm. Barker as manager; Clyde Trent, captain, and Kenneth Ribble, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Cobb was selected as coach. In order to start a fund for the team an entertainment was given by the High School pupils in the assembly room. This proved a great financial success.

Trent, Alderman, Purdy, Lund, Entriken and Mahlum are members of last year's team who are again in the field. In addition to this, a large number of new men are out for the team including Day, Brooks, Orne, Halladay, Twohey, Berggreen, Langslow, Bolton, Bush and Tucker.

Much general interest is manifest this year in baseball. The boys are struggling to meet the scholastic requirements and are working hard on the field. It is hoped that we will have a stronger team in the field this year than ever before.

In the autumn the pupils manifested a great amount of interest in football by their presence on the field and enthusiasm over the game. Now that Spring is here baseball is the game and the same amount of encouragement will help Brainerd to become the star High School baseball team of this section of the country.

The schedule includes games with Staples, Aitkin and Little Falls.

LABORATORY

"IN THE NAME OF SCIENCE"

The first few days of my short but exciting career were spent in the waters of the mighty Mississippi. Here under the guidance of my relatives, I learned to swim and acquired all the other arts so necessary to a turtle's existence. Early too, I was taught the dangers which lurked in the waters near the pump house. From my uncle, I had heard of the sad fate which had befallen my brother, Cato, who had ventured too near this monster and drawn in by the suction, was now lying lifeless in some water main of the city.

Thus time passed eventually until one calm spring evening when I was peacefully reclining on a large cedar log, I had noticed the approach of two high school boys, but thinking that such mighty individuals could have no interest in me, was not afraid. But my confidence was sadly shaken when one of the boys slipped softly behind me, grabbed me, and thrust me into a can.

"Gee, Dick," I heard one say, "This is a dandy specimen."

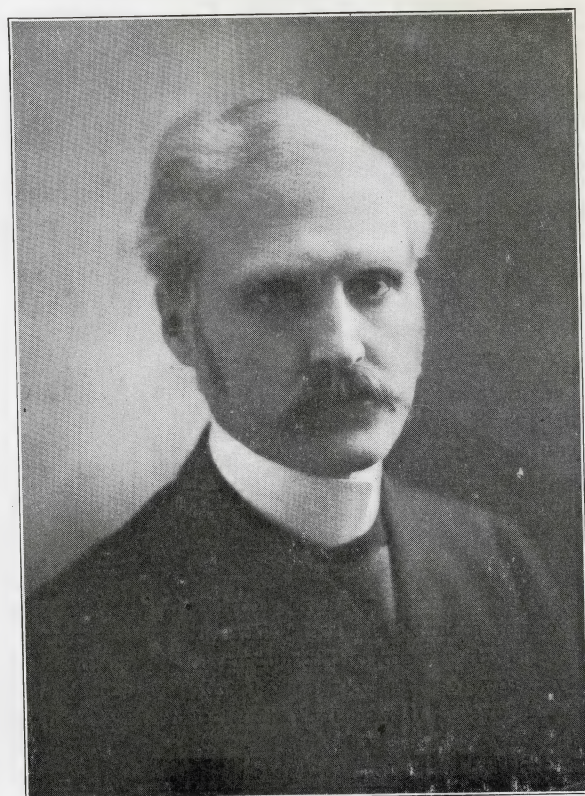

Prisoner that I was, I became angry at being called names but after hurriedly running over my vocabulary could find no satisfactory retort and so remained in dignified silence.

When the can was finally opened and I was lifted out, I could scarcely breathe from surprise. Never had I beheld such a wonderful place. Glasses and bottles and smells. Boys wearing aprons, running around me as though they were playing house with girls who chattered vigorously as they hacked away at some objects in tin pans.

They placed me in a glass jar where I could view the proceedings. And shells of my ancestors, what did I see! The objects in tin pans were crabs and these boys and girls were cutting them to pieces to see what made them go. Only a few feet away, a kind-faced girl was dismembering one whom I knew and loved. It was Jack, the last child of the Sandbar family, and only the day before I had seen his mother anxiously searching for him. I had heard her threaten to thrash him soundly when she found him. I thought of her sorrow when the days passed and he returned not. I looked down, down the vista of years to come and saw her agony when the news reached her that Jack's death came at the hands of a Zoology student. Oh, how I shuddered. Can this be my fate?

Merciful Heavens! The Zoology teacher approaches me. In one hand she holds a chloroform bottle; in the other a huge butcher knife. In her eyes shines the light of battle, the fanatic glare of the scientist. Will nothing avail me! Help! Help! Vain. They heed me not. 'Tis done; already I feel the conquering hand of death. "Oh Science! How many crimes are committed in thy name."

NORA BARRON, '13.

IN MEMORIAM

T. B. HARTLEY

Our former superintendent, Tolbert Berwell Hartley, died Aug. 14, 1909. For some years Mr. Hartley had been seriously reduced in strength and vitality, yet the end came as a surprise to his friends, for with his indomitable courage he gave little evidence of his condition. Many hearts now ache because he left the world without knowing how much they loved and revered him. We can say but little of what is in our hearts, but we at least wish to pay him tribute.

Mr. Hartley was superintendent of Brainerd schools for a period of nine years. His talent as an organizer and his ability as chief executive placed the schools among the very best of the northwest. His professional ideals were exceptionally high, and he never allowed himself to lose sight of them. To attain them he not only worked indefatigably himself, but sternly exacted the very highest efforts of teachers and pupils. He was a scholar in every sense of the word, with a wonderful scope of mind, and an accurate grasp of facts.

He had the pure heart of a perfect gentleman, which ever showed itself in refined manners and gentle courtesy. The weak but struggling teacher or pupil knew him in a special way; to them he showed a keen understanding; a large and tender sympathy that is rare indeed among men. He was quiet and reserved; few know him on short acquaintance. One was really privileged in having a trouble or difficulty great enough to take to him, for then one received a revelation of a profoundly noble character, and realized the strength of his helping hand. As was said centuries ago when knighthood was in flower, so again we say:

"A Knight there was, and that a worthy man—
He loved chivalry,
Truth and honor, freedom and courtesye."

DID YOU EVER?

DID YOU EVER—

Hear Twohey making a speech?
Or know that Barker was going to preach?
Or know that Happy thinks Dolly a peach?
Or think of the length of Claudius' reach?
What Never? That's Strange.

DID YOU EVER—

Think Mildred S. would flirt a bit?
Or imagine Maud ever made a hit?
Or wonder why 'twas that Darling quit?
Or see a pretty Freshie not concious of it?
What Never? That's Strange.

DID YOU EVER—

See Hemstead out making a call?
Or imagine that Nora would ever be tall?
Or think that Ida S. ever studied at all?
What Never? That's Strange.

DID YOU EVER—

See John B. without any smile?
Or see Clyde Trent at the trial?
Or see Mabel K. work once in a while?
What Never? That's Strange.

DID YOU EVER—

See a boy as pretty as F. Johnson?
Or think that Francis F. will weigh a ton?
Or think that Adelaide will be won?
Or force out a laugh when teacher makes a pun?
What Never? That's Strange.

"Twohey and his Deutche's Grammar"

Historic Setting—German recitation at two

Scene. Any warm May day the first period in the afternoon in the Assembly Room.

Historical Setting. German recitation at two p. m. and a long lesson to get. Wilhelm did not feel like studying the night before.

Willhelm lazily opens the book and looks for the dreadful German lesson.

German Book: "Guten Tag," Wilhelm "Wie gehts."

W. T. "Sehr schlecht me'n liebes Deutstes Buch."

G. B. "Was sind die drouble Wilhelm nichts zu do?"

W. T. "Ach nein, all Mann hort around hier ist vork, vork, vork. Nun, was denken Sie of drei lesson in Deutsch fur today?"

G. B. "Aber Wilhelm, es ist review."

W. T. "Ya, das ist die throuble. If Sie es die firste zeit nichts kenne how will Sie es die second zeit lerne?"

G. B. "Aber mein lieber Wilhelm, warum don't Sie es kenne?"

W. T. "Ach liebes Buch. Sie sind nict wise. Es ist ein impossibility fur mein Irish intellect es zu kennen."

G. B. "Ach Wilhelm, will your Irish wit die death of mir yit be mit your foolish funnyness."

W. T. "Guten Tag. Ich bin zu sleep gehen. Call mir at zwei und die German teacher will mir at 2:10 call, if not before."

WILLIAM TWOHEY, '12

A MODERN "LORELEI"

Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedenten,
Das ich so know-nothing bin;
Die marken auf meinen Reporten,
Machen mich fuhlen like sin.

Die Lektion ist schwer und lange,
Und schwiftly geht die Time;
Die Teacher ist kranky und bange,
Of memory ich habe keine.

Und nun in der Klass ich sitze,
Ich hold meines Breath dabei;
For maybe die Teacher mit Blitze,
Will call on me next, Oh my!

Och, Himmel! Da geht es los!
Und ich shrink ins Herz hinein;
But hark die Bell and away with my woes,
As I rush out mit der line.

BASILIS GOPHER

De quarta hera cuisusdam diei Aprilis, schola nestra tam quieta et composita tumultu subito est excitata. Accidit ut Basil Burrel parvum gopherem praeceptricem non amabat et timebat ne vita isset. Sed gopher laboratorium non amabat et timebat ne vita privahetur. Itaque fugit et errans, Horrible dictu! in conventum discipulorum advenit. Mehercle! Quem tumultum! Quam turbationem! Statim puellae cum squealis in deska jumerunt. Sed non Eliza—Eheu! Puella infelix hobbilem skirtem habebat. “Horrores!” exclamavit, “Quid facere possum?” Parvus Cludius, in deskum suum climbere triebat. Libri aemem jacebantur. Undique confusio.

Nunc magister McCarty, ira commotus, exclamavit “Manes Maiorum! Quid nunc?”; tum, voce dira, “Puellae statim attendit! Ordines procedite!”

“Uon ita,” dicit Esther, “Postulatne vir ut vitas nostros riskemus?”

Hic Georgius Ford, nobilis Sophomorus, gopherem ferocem audacissime apprehendit.

“Ordines procedite!” rursus intonavit magister Periculo averso, omnes paruehunt; pax et quieta est restituta.

“Manes Caesaris magni!” Georgius Ford ejaculavit “Territae a parve gophere!”

THE FRESHMEN.

AN ODE TO GREAT CAESAR'S GHOST

O, Ceasar, dear Ceasar, come back from the grave,
And take back the book which to us you gave;
We've toiled and we've struggled, we only know how
With a last spark of hope we appeal to you now.

O, Glorious Caesar, when it thou did'st write
Did'st thou think of the headaches and long sleepless nights,
How much midnight oil, frenzied students would burn,
In desperate efforts a credit to earn?
To you legions, 'tis said, you were kindness itself.
Then why Caesar, plague us with tales of yourself?
Come back mighty Roman, across River Styx
We beg thee, implore thee, this record to fix.
Take the "Gauls" from its place on Miss M's Latin shelf,
And revise it from cover to cover yourself.
Use red ink aplenty, blue pencil and black,
Of grammars and ponies, we have not a lack.
Your speeches would be far more easy, of course,
If you'd change indirect to plainer discourse.
How on earth did poor Liscus, and all your crew
Comprehend what you meant when they listened to you?
And think of the ablative absolutes too!
They're the next on the list you can draw your pen thru;
The glories of war and your conflicts so bloody,
A nightmare your idioms makes of their study.
You were famed for your caution and careful forethought
Yet we think that in haste these records you brought
Into being, to torture posterity's mind—
For surely no human whose heart was so kind,
When he thought of the groans of Miss M's class,
Would throw in subjunctions in such a huge mass.
Pariphrastics and pronouns, perplexing infinitives
You've mixed with historical tenses and relatives.
How can you rest easy, O great Caesar's ghost!
When you hear the loud wails of the souls who have lost?
Then hasten, great statesman, O come not too late!
State exams are soon coming; we quake at our fate.
When your work being through, gather all of the volumes,
Build a pyre and while upward the smoke rolls in columns,
Return to Elysium, reward of the blest,
With the dust of your fathers your ashes can rest.

KATHLEEN HAWKINS, '13.

ROUTINE OF ONE SCHOOL DAY

INTRODUCTION—

1. 6:30 A. M.—Sun not yet visible. Moxie waiting for the doors to open.
2. 7:30 A. M.—Sun rises on scene. Swanson appears. Cries of the hungry animals announces awakening of the Zoo.
3. 8:25—9:00 A. M.—Miss Long arrives with breakfast for the Zoo. Miss Mahlum carrying flowers and holding hair in place. Roaring and puffing announces arrival of Principal 10 minutes late.
4. School opens.

EVENTS—

1. Roll call taken. Fourteen missing. Mr. McCarty lectures on absence.
2. Arrival of missing students. Noise of arrival. Excuses given. Freight train.
3. McCarty's rage.
4. Punishment of offenders. Mac's lengthy lecture. Delinquents called to office. Questions of students and answers of McCarty—

F. F.—“I started at seven o'clock—what time do you expect us to come?”

Mac—“Start at five or earlier.”

Mae S.—“Did you want us to jump over the freight?”

Mac—“Don't ask such foolish questions—I want you to get here at 9 o'clock.” Office bell rings violently. Offenders excused. A ferocious rat terrier in the assembly. Mac captures the terrible monster triumphantly carries it down stairs by the ears.

5. 10:40—Rest Period. Mae Staples produces marshmallows. Fran Quinn allowed to giggle to her heart's content for 15 minutes. Delinquent 14 again called to office. Questions resumed:

Mac—“Now Miss Smythe, aren't you ashamed?”

Mabel—“Ashamed of what?”

Mac, angrily—“Of your disgraceful conduct.”

Mac, sorrowfully—“Miss Staples, don't you know you have disgraced your mother?”

Mae, cheerfully—"No, sir. She don't know anything about me."

Bell rings again. Offenders dismissed. Mac hurries to assembly room. Dick Ahrens has been smoothing his hair for 10 minutes. Mac causes it to stand on end.

6. 12 o'clock—A tin dishpan on the landing strikes up a march. School is dismissed. The Zoo clamors for its dinner.

7. Afternoon session begins. Mac has had time to think. Places notices on board—"No freight train excuses will be accepted for tardiness." Delinquent 14 summoned to office.

Mac—"Now, Mr. Ribbel, why were you late?"

Kenneth, remembering notice—"I was unavoidably detained north of the tracks."

Bell interrupts for third time. This time an untamed gopher is disturbing the school. Mac shouts directions. George Ford nobly pursues the animal. Girls shriek, Miss Mahlum cries. Gopher returned to Zoo. Delinquent 14 again summoned to office. Lecture begins—"When I was in college,"—Eloquence interrupted by noise. Delinquent 14 and Mac rush to assembly room to answer to noise. False alarm, Seikkinen was blowing his nose. In disgust, the delinquent 14 are told to remain after school.

4:00 o'clock—Fortunate ones dismissed. Grinds and delinquent 14 remain—also a large coterie of "Skinney's" girl friends.

After school session—Mac—"Now we can discuss it in peace."

Distant thunder heard. Mac returns to assembly room. Returns and explains: "Only Moxie rehearsing his speech."

Mac—"Now each one must promise never to be late again. You first Miss O'Conner." Majorie—"I promise, 'if' "

Mac, roaring—"No 'if' about it. You've got to promise whether you will jump the freight; get killed; or stay up all night. Promise I say!" Everyone promises.

Conclusion—Mr. McCarthy, a half hour late for social function in the evening. Excuse. Freight train.

"WHO WAS THIS FRESHIE?"

Whose hair was cut in Pompadour,
And light gray breeches always wore?
His face was pleasant and all the while,
He wore a kindly and genial smile.
He sat up straight, with air sedate,
His turn to recite did anxiously await.
He always recited loudly and long
For his voice was good and his lungs were strong;
And we all listened while he spake
And those who were sleeping always awake.

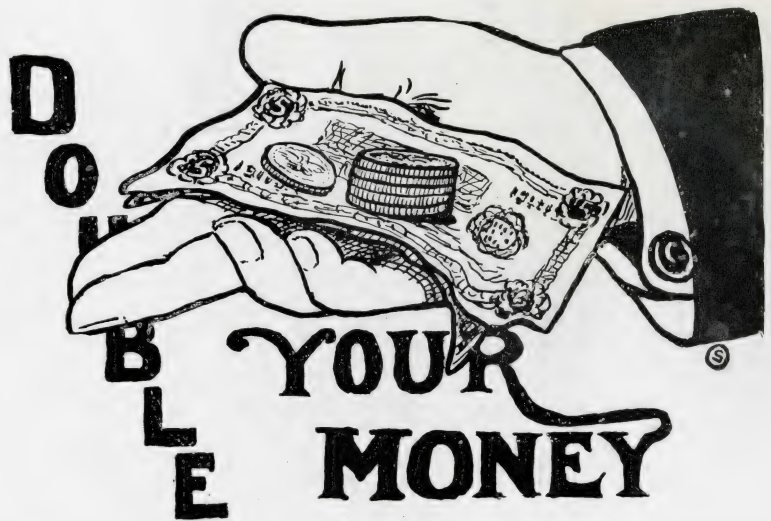

"MICHAEL'S"
The Garment Store

If there is one thing more than another that we specialize upon it is upon ready to wear garments.

The necessity of buying all garments ready made is becoming more evident to the woman who wants garments which do not have the "home made" effect. Good tailoring is the necessary requisite and it is an art to produce a good tailored garment.

Our new store offers unusual opportunities for displaying garments and we permit no store to show you better garments, as we keep in touch with what Fashion decrees. With all this correctness we insist upon reasonable prices and the woman purchasing garments of us is insured the full value of her money.

"CHARGE OF THE HIGH SCHOOL BRIGADE"

Thru the halls, thru the halls,
Thru the halls onward,
Hopefully, madly

Charged the 200

All kinds beneath the sun,
Grinds, flunkers, all in one,
All coming on the run,
Chattering and laughing full of fun—

Charged the 200

Teachers to the right of them,
Teachers to the left of them,
Teachers all around them
Volleyed and thundred
Who can the lesson tell?
Stormed at with roast and yell,
Mostly they reeled and fell—

Fell the 200.

Having to take the work
They could not skip or shirk,
Each studied like a Turk,
All the world wondered.
Then under the lashing,
Teeth fiercely gnashing—
Red ink a splashing—

Collapsed the 200.

When Ford and Twohey start talking
You just as well might try,
To stop a locomotive,
Or an airship in the sky.
For the steam that runs the engine
And the gas the airship floats,
Are nothing to the stream of words
From out of these youthful throats.

THE HAZARD TEACHERS' AGENCY

AN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

TO THE BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL:—

The writer well remembers the beautiful banquet and program arranged in honor of his class, at the time of his graduation from the Brainerd High School, by the Alumni. It will always remain in his memory as a most fitting culmination of his high school education and the attainment of the first goal of his ambition. The recollection thereof again comes to my memory, as it often has, and again I see the sumptuous banquet in our honor, again I hear the speeches and the words of advice given us by the older alumni and the faculty.

For several years there was no alumni organization or an annual banquet given. Last year through the efforts of W. C. Cobb and several of the alumni a temporary organization was affected. We succeeded in giving a most successful banquet and also in gaining a small balance for our treasury. Let us strive this year to complete our organization and make it a permanent institution, having for its aim and purpose the attainment of a closer relation and the cultivation of a better acquaintance among the alumni and a yearly reunion of its members, the mutual co-operation of the alumni, faculty and school authorities for their common good, and the giving of an annual banquet in honor of the graduating class.
